

SIXTY-SECOND YEAR NO. 26

New US-27 To Open By This Week End

During your leisure-time travel Michigan state highways this summer don't be surprised if you encounter miles of worn-out roads. In fact, be surprised if you don't.

The state 3-cent gasoline tax and other revenue sources afford about $36 million in road money for the fiscal year ending June 30.

It seems like a lot of money, but it really isn't so much, as Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler sadly proves.

"From this amount $700,000 are required for general administration, $5 million for engineering and supervision, $14 million for highway and bridge maintenance and operation, and $500,000 to cover operating loss of state ferries at the Straits of Mackinac," Commissioner Ziegler reports.

This leaves a balance of only $15,700,000 of state funds for highway and bridge new construction and reconstruction as well as to meet unforeseen emergencies not in the program such as the immediate replacement of three bridges which collapsed this year.

The legislature has approved a budget of $2,500,000 to start construction of a double-ended icebreaker ferry needed to handle adequately the increased traffic volume across the Straits of Mackinac both winter and summer.

Money spent on construction of this ferry must also come out of the funds available for highway construction."

Lack of finances do not permit the state highway department to provide for normal depreciation of trunkline system of 9,400 miles.

We should be spending $25 million each year in order to take care of depreciation only," said Ziegler. "We still have about $100 million of highway deficiencies today. Finances have not been adequate.

From 1942 through 1945 regular highway construction was impossible because of war restrictions, but depreciation was stepped up by unprecedented traffic necessary by wartime emergencies.

Government statistics show that 73 per cent of all war production transportation in Michigan moved over Michigan highways.

In 1946, immediately after the war, we expected to get our post-war construction programs under way. We could not do so because the impossibility of getting cement, steel, new equipment and other materials.

Therefore we had four years of war, plus 1946, five years when there was no normal highway construction.

Cost of Michigan Highway work has risen steadily from 1941 through the war years to 1949.

Today our highway costs are 6% above the costs of 1941.

The dollar today purchases less than one-half what it did in 1941.

Two lane 22-foot pavements, when carried traffic satisfactorily in 1941, are inadequate to handle safely the greatly increased volume.

In 1941 we were building these normal two-lane pavements, including preliminary grading and drainage structures for $40 to $45 thousand dollars per mile.

A mile of the one width of concrete pavement day increased some in thickness and more heavily reinforced to handle the heavier industrial traffic, costing about $100 thousand dollars per mile.

Ordinarily divided highways with a two-lane pavement in both directions cost about $200 thousand dollars or more per mile in a rural section.

Because of the number of railroad and street grade separations and the high cost of necessary right-of-way in the 10% mile section of Ford and Lodge expressways are now working on costs around $62 million dollars per mile.

The state must pay $2 to $1 of Federal aid for right-of-way purchases."

There is inflation also in highway use. Passenger car traffic is nearly 25 per cent compared with 1941; industrial traffic is up 10 per cent. More heavy trucks and busses pound the pavement.

Commissioner Ziegler has favored the Good Roads Federation program for an increase in the gasole tax. He points out that Michigan is one of three states which have a 3-cent gasole tax; that the average tax of states on Jan. 1, 1949 was 5.7¢ per gallon; that since Jan. 1, 1949 total of 14 states increased the tax load so that the average now approximately 6¢ a gallon double that of Michigan.

If all state roads are not ideal, remember this: Better roads and higher taxes go hand in hand.

Repeal This Class Tax

In the latter part of March, the Canadian government repealed its special tax on transportation. The result is that thousands of Americans have been flocking across the border to buy rail, air, bus and steamship tickets. The manager of one air office in Canada said, "We have had trouble getting enough ticket agents to handle the business."

The reason for this is that the United States still has its 15 per cent tax on commercial transportation—but it does not apply to tickets sold in Canada, even though those tickets will be mostly used for travel within the U. S. It is reported that many people are writing to friends in Canada to buy tickets for them there and mail them on. Blocks of tickets purchased in Canada have been appearing in volume at such distant points as Los Angeles.

Here is one of the reasons why sentiment for repeal of the special transportation tax is swiftly gaining in volume. The tax to begin with was a war emergency measure, designed to act as a deterrent to civilian travel at a time when all transportation systems were strained to the limit. No one can call traveling a luxury. It is done for business reasons health, for going to and from school, and many necessary purposes. The tax now lays an unjustifiable burden on these activities.

The solution is simple: Repeal a tax whose reason for being no longer exists.

Liberty has never come from the government. Liberty has always come from the subjects of it. The history of liberty is a history of resistance. The history of liberty is a history of limitations of governmental power, not the increase of it.—Woodrow Wilson.

ENTERTAINMENT IN BOTH THE MODERN and old-time manner is expected to attract 3,000,000 visitors to the Chicago Railroad Fair this summer. Many new exhibits in the spectacular 50-acre exposition on the lakefront afford a great variety in entertainment and educational features to Fairgoers.

A glittering new ice show and a thrilling exhibition of water sports will vie for attention throughout the summer with such historic attractions as a San Francisco cable car and the rip-roaring frontier town of "Gold Gulch," where a "gambling den," an assay office, old-time bank, barber shop, printing office for the town's newspaper, a courthouse, jail and leather emporium will all be open for business as in the Gold Rush days.

New scenes have been added to the popular "Wheels-a-Rolling" pageant, including a "Buffalo Bill" circus parade, led by the famous ringmaster astride his white horse, and a scene featuring the bridal coach which was built in London 111 years ago and brought to Nova Scotia on the same ship with the new governor general of Canada and was used to carry his bride and himself from the seaport to their new home 25 miles away.

Iowa Marriage Of Interest Here

Of interest to many Grayling people is the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Jane Sparkes and Robert Lee Galloway at Christ Episcopal Church, Burlington Iowa, on Sunday, June 12 at 8 P. M. Rev. Bernard Miars read the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Sparkes and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey J. Galloway of Lincoln, Neb.

The bride wore a gown of ice blue satin fashioned with a dropped shoulder of ice blue illusion net outlined with appliques of satin, fitted bodice with folds of satin at the hipline, long princess sleeves and circular skirt with a formal train. Her veil of ice blue illusion was held in place by a headress of seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and stephanotis centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Jack Bedford Sparkes of Pontiac served as matron of honor, wearing a white marquisette gown with panels of chantilly lace and a shoulder cape. She wore mitts and bonnet of lace. Her flowers—stephanotis, briarcliff roses and blue delphinium in a Colonial bouquet surrounded by puffs of white maline and tied with white satin.

Harvey J. Galloway, Jr., Lincoln, served as best man. Jack Bedford Sparkes, Pontiac, brother of the bride was usher. Ring bearer was Robert Ester, Lincoln, Neb.

A reception was held at Burlington Golf Club following the wedding, after which the newly wedded left for a honeymoon at Wisconsin Dells and northern Wisconsin. They will make their home in LaCrosse, Wisconsin, where Mr. Galloway is a production engineer.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Now I'm Going Back To High School!

When I saw lights burning in the High School auditorium last night, looked in to see what went on. About twenty people were listening to Buzz Ellis, the electrician, talk about television.

I slipped into a back seat and asked Hap Thomas what was up. Hap told me it was the new Self-improvement Club. I stayed to listen—and learned a lot. Buzz really knows his stuff.

Turns out this club meets every Friday night. Each member gives talk on the subject he knows most about. I joined on the spot because learning new things is one of my favorite hobbies.

From where I sit, it's willingness to learn from the other person that makes Americans tolerant towards so many different viewpoints and tastes in things. Just because Buzz Ellis goes for chocolate malteds, while I prefer a mellow glass of beer, doesn't mean I'm right and he's wrong. Incidentally, next week I'm going to talk on how to run a newspaper.

SHOT STOP

When the Blind See

By LOUIS CUNNINGHAM

"I MUST go to him myself, Parrish. I have so looked forward to surprising him."

Mrs. Gerald Ivering, home from six months in Europe, had reached

New York a day earlier than she had cabled her husband. Her maid held the young wife by the arm as they went up the steps. In the hall Kitty whispered, "Go up and unpack, Parrish. I can find my way very well . . . just as if . . ."

Parrish smiled fondly at her mistress . . . a face sweetly calmed by years of darkness and patient suffering.

"Blindness made you no less lovely, shadow," said Parrish. "And you could see nothing finer than yourself."

Parrish watched her feeling the wall to her husband's study.

Gerald Ivering moved hastily away from the woman who sat beside him. He put his finger to her lips, then touched his eyes to call to mind that she who stood in the door could not see them.

"Kitty! You wired you'd be on Wednesday's plane. And there was no one there to meet you."

"I wanted to walk in on you like this when you were all alone and thinking of me," she cried.

THE woman moved noiselessly and stood by the mastic. Kitty took the place she had left. Gerald, an uneasy frown on his face, sat beside her.

"It is late," said the blind girl.

"I knew I would find you alone.

Have you been very homesick for me, Gerald? What did you do while I was away?"

"It has not been easy without you," he said.

"You never cared for anyone but me, Gerald, did you?" persisted Kitty. "There was no other woman."

"But there was, Kitty . . . a year before you came. I thought I loved her and she pretended to care for me. I was just a young lawyer then. I had nothing to offer and she married a wealthy man."

"You ceased to love her then, of course. Did you never see her again?"

"Yes, I saw her . . . recently."

"Tell me. What is she like? Is she prettier than I? . . . Tall, perhaps, with black hair and eyes and very red lips and a soulless face . . . a sort of woman whom it is death for a man to love?"

The woman moved angrily. A different crimson from that which decked her cheeks flooded her forehead. Gerald gazed in wonder. He smiled cynically. "She is all you describe. Even as you guess . . . for I know you never saw her."

"She is soulless. She was untrue to me and she is now untrue to the man who calls her wife. She is a temptress . . . even to one who is strong in an honest love. She came to me again and tried to win me back. But what she offers is dishonorable. I told her to go. You were my protection. I never want to see her again."

Her lips went to his.

THE woman looked at him with hatred. Then she picked up her wrap by the door and vanished.

The girl's fingers caressed her husband's face and her lips went to his. Suddenly she pointed to his shoulder.

"See, Gerald, there is a hair on your coat. Wait, I will get it."

He stared in wonderment.

"Kit, Kit! What is this? Am I dreaming? You . . . you can see!"

"I went to a specialist in Vienna two months ago and have some of my sight back. That was why I came in surprise. And oh, I am glad that the first thing I saw about you is the honesty of your love. I had been without the use of my eyes too long to trust the value of what they first showed me . . . that woman with her arm about your neck. I knew if I were blind I would be happier, so I kept up the pretence and in blindness I saw what in light I might have missed."

Where will your hunting and trapping be? You get to that reservation and stay there. Every time we catch you off of it we're going to stick you in the Hoosier.

The Indian replied, "You else—or words to that effect—and stood his ground. I have met the man with the sharp faced axe and the saw with my teeth, and we are friends."

I declared, "I am descendant of Chief Pontiac. Can you say your blood is richer?" I stay here to protect the graves of my people.

As a sad commentary on Chief Sho-be-gun's courage or insanity, it is reported that the Consumers Power Co. built the Cooke Dam a few years ago. Indian cemetery of huge dimensions was flooded and in graves were dug up along north shore of the AuSable. A few old-time lumberjacks still their heads and think back to friendly old Indian who never went to the reservation. He has no particular place of his own he finally disappeared. It is figured that wolves picked bones.

It is not intended in these articles to describe in minute detail the AuSable River Country as it is today—thus possibly spoiling a part of your fun when you're visiting it, nor to dwell long on well-known facts of history of the area, but to seek out the uncommon, the little-known incidents that might add colour to your trip, and forward the work the writer has in mind.

In this connection, did you ever see or hear of a "Crazy Indian?" Probably not. In all of our mental institutions today, try and find just one Michigan Indian. I've heard of just one who was called crazy, and that is what brings this up. It was in the AuSable country, and I'm not going to use his right name because of his more than 200 real live offspring, many of whom are mighty fine people, and a few are in high offices both in and outside of this state. Any how there isn't a one of them I'd care to stand up to and tell him I thought his granddad was crazy.

So we'll call him Sho-be-gun. The story is that when his people were ordered to vacate and "vamoose" to the reservation provided for them on the east side of the river along the Huron coast by the Saginaw Treaty in 1819, he refused to bow to any such white-man's tomfoolery. "This is our home," he was quoted as saying "What about the graves of my people?"

Your people will get 1,000 silver dollars from the government each year forever!" he was answered, and to which the aged Indian replied, "For 400 people how much is that, even for ever, if we should live that long. Not even one beaver pelt a piece. Leave us alone and we catch our own beaver."

"You're crazy," the government agent is said to have replied, "this country's going to be logged. When the loggers get through there won't be a tree left for shade."

Compulsory Sickness Insurance means this:

Under American Medicine your Medical Bill pays this:

Under Compulsory Medicine your Medical Bill must pay these:

As it is now, you pay for your medical care if and when sickness overtakes your family. You can cover the cost with insurance, under any of the several low-cost private plans. But, if the Government gets into the picture you'll not only pay for direct medical care, but for all the extra government job-holders needed to operate the system. You'll pay for the high cost of this red tape through a deduction from every paycheck, whether you're sick or not. So when anybody talks to you about cheaper medical care, just remember all of the extras that you'll be called upon to pay for under government health insurance. Talk it over with your medical doctor and get the real facts about the cost of socialized medicine.
